Forum Module

• Cost $600

Forums are online bulletin board systems that allow users to post comments, ask questions, display images, provide links and upload attachments to others on your website. The forum module has an extensive administration panel to easily customize forum features to suit your website. The posting interface includes a formatting toolbar, post preview, draft saving options, emoticons and supports multiple attachments including images, documents, video streams, audio streams and archives.

Forums have advanced security functions, multiple-language interface abilities, can be divided into separate categories and can be password protected.

Forums provide many interactive and personalizing features for your website visitors. Registered users have the ability to print, e-mail, subscribe to and bookmark specific forums and topics. Users have a control panel to set preferences, change profile settings, and add signatures and avatars to their display names.

FEATURES

- We will create a theme for your forum to match your website design
- Access to statistics regarding user behaviour
- Secure your forum by setting permission roles
- The registration system allows only registered users to post comments on the forum
- Moderators can edit posts and lock topics
- Integrated word censoring function
- Topic and post sorting options allow you to display topics categorically
- Administrators can warn and/or ban users permanently and temporarily
- Anti-Spam features protect your forums from being flooded with unwanted posts
- Private message system/instant messaging for forum users with unread message tracking and notification
- Integrated basic polling functions to conduct online polls
- Integrated search system with advanced search options to sort by author, date, topics and more
- User groups can be created with joining options such as hidden, closed, open to the public, or invite-only

The forum module is available only as an add-on feature to one of our website packages (Vectyr, Vectyr+ Cart, or Sphere). Please contact us for a customized quote if you need us to design a forum theme and wish to host it independently.
